Aquaterra Energy in Aberdeen appoints new Principal Analyst

Aquaterra Energy, the offshore engineering and project management specialist, is pleased to announce the appointment of Richard Gosling as Principal Analyst in Aberdeen.

Gosling holds a 1st Class BA Hons in Engineering, specialising in mechanical engineering topics from Trinity College, Cambridge. He brings 18 years' experience of Finite Element Analysis, using advanced software tools to predict stress, strain, deformation, vibration, heat flow, and thermal expansion of components with complex geometry and under complex combined loading conditions.

For the last 11 years, Gosling has focused his analysis primarily on subsea equipment and pipelines, working with organisations such as Andrew Palmer and Associates, WS Atkins and Genesis Oil and Gas.

Eric Doyle, General Manager for Aquaterra Energy in Aberdeen said: "Richard further enhances our team in Aberdeen and adds to the the high value engineering support we provide our clients. He brings a wealth of analysis experience and is supported by our growing team in Aberdeen as well as our highly skilled engineering teams in Norwich and Cambridge."
